HONGKONG, APRIL 9TH, 1874:

To judge by the latest news with regard t the currency question, its appears that it will form a notable illustration of the fact that the simplest remedies are often those which are last thought of. For years we have been puzzling ourselves as to how a remedy could be found for the great annoyance of chop-dollars, and a no less elaborate scheme than that of the establishment of a local mint was hit upon as appropriate, after that had proved ineffective, it was thought that there was actually nothing to be done, but to put up with the inconvenience. To a considerable extent the chop dollar nuisance has been mitigated by the issue of the Dollar Notes, but this has not done away with the want of a sound and reliable currency not only for Colonial requirements but also for the China Trade generally. This point was brought prominently forward at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce with reference to intraducing the American Trade Dollar and the Japanese Yen; and by good fortune a much better and simpler scheme was suggested in the course of the discussion, namely, supplying a suitable coin for the Colony minted at home.

It is satisfactory to notice from the letter of the Colonial-Secretary read at the meeting of-the-Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday, that this scheme has been well backed up by the local Government. Mr. Austin says that date consisted of 4,312 chests Patna, and for him being mail day that Mr. G. Maole n taken them from there in that state in a bout that H. E. the Governor would not fail to 1.661 chests Benares: total 5.976 chests. draw the attention of the Secretary or STATE to Mr. WHITTALL'S resolution in favour of the coinage at home of a dollar suitable for this Colony-and it may be boned this indicates that the suggestion will be recommended as a feasible one, and as being likely to prove advantageous. As mentioned yesterday, information has boen received here that there will not be any difficulty in producing a dollar in Calcutta, 26th September. and should the Home Government not object to this plan, there are many reasons in its favour, and only one so far as we are informed, against it. The adventages which and from the horses which were duly marched The defendant needed always to treat him was. It was enough for him to know that witwould be gained by having a coin minted in Calcutta are efficiency in coinage, and proximity in the source of supply; but against bouse. these has to be placed a possible disadvangreat advantage, as one of the most important considerations in a commercial point of that a chimney on the premises lately occupied defendant for several years, and had bad con- second defendant then got into another boat view is that the Mint should be near enough by Mesers. Au idea was mooted that the London Mint could not undert. 9 such work, and it was apparently assumed that they would rather not do so. To judge, however, from the readiness with which the Master of the Calcutta Mint has expressed his ability to meet the matter, it is any great guilt in the alteration of these would appear by no means improbable that. the Home Mint may be quite willing to do right to do right to do right to do right to do be preserved; by the military so too; and, in that case, the well known tendency of the Home Government to keep all matters of importance in their own hands would probably make them disposed to complete the arrangements with the Imperial Mint, without giving the alternative of the Calcutta Mint sufficient consideration. For this reason, it would be certainly desirable that the latter project should be carefully considered, and if it turn out, as appears, likely, to be feasible, it should be specifically laid before the Home Authorities as a scheme to be considered at the same time as the original one, and decided upon its merits. It is not impossible, however, that at the outset the requirements of commerce would be best met by arrangements for striking the new coin being made at both the London and the Calcutta Mints; and in that case, if there were any material advantage in the one over the other, the course of they were stolen by servante and sold to detrade would soon prove the fact, and the f coinage become permanently established at

Next, leaving the Brighton card case, with the evidence of the witnesses in support of it, and Dr. Kenealy's "magnanimous and sublime indifference" to dates and places and persons, his Hongkong Gas Company's Shares-$75 per Lordship went on to examine in detail the accounts which has been given of the "recogni- Hongkong Hotel Company's Shares-$60 per tion of the defendant by his mother. Taking the evidence almost sentence by sentence, the Indo-Chiness Sugar Company-$94 per cent Lord Chief-Justice, in affect, asked the jury to | ... consider to what the recognition really amounted. They had the account given of it by Coyne, the Irish footman, whom Dr. Kenealy had not cross-examined; and they were consequently; to take it for granted that Lady Tichborne went straight into the room where the defendant was lying on the bod with his face turned to the wall, and—without putting a single question to him-stooped over him as he lay, kissed him, and said that " his face was like his father's, and his ears were like his unole's." Such was the "recognition" to which so much stress had been uttached. There were, it was true, no sufficient grounds for assuming that the poor lady was either dishonest or insane. But it would be for the jury to say whether she was not placed under circumstances which rendered the soundness of her judgment open to seriouscriticism.
